SUBJECT: SUBJECT: PAKISTAN MEDIA REACTION: JANUARY 21, 2010

Summary: Coverage of Secretary of Defense Gates' visit to the region dominated all major newspapers on Thursday morning. Media reported Secretary Gates' warning that Al Qaeda could trigger a war between India and Pakistan, and that "India's patience will be limited if there is a repeat of 26/11." The largest Urdu language daily, "Jang" and its sister English paper, "The News," published an exclusive op-ed by Secretary Gates entitled, "U.S. commitment to Pakistan's future." "The Nation" reported that "tough sessions" are expected between Secretary Gates and the GoP regarding Indian's role in Afghanistan. Some papers also covered FBI Director Mueller's remarks that Al Qaeda and its offshoots are spreading. Papers also carried State Department Coordinator for Counter-Terrorism Benjamin's statement that Lashkar-e-Taiba (LeT) could become a threat to the West. On the economic front, several dailies reported that the U.S. will release $480 million to Pakistan in January under the Coalition Support Fund. Possible fallout of the Supreme Court's judgment against the National Reconciliation Ordinance (NRO) continued to garner media attention, with reports that President Zardari and Prime Minister Gilani were making "hectic consultations" with their aides, and that the government may file a new petition against the verdict. Reports of the announcement of Mehsud tribal jirga to handover Tehrik-e-Taliban Pakistan (TTP) chief Hakeemullah to the government also received extensive coverage. All newspapers reported a bomb blast that injured an NWFP Assembly member in Peshawar. End Summary.

EDITORIALS/OPINIONS

Opinion: Our Commitment To Pakistan, an op-ed by U.S. Defence Secretary Robert M Gates in the populist, often sensational national English daily "The NeQ (cir. 55,000) (01/21)

". . . . Even Q much is still made in the media of a "trust deficit" between our nations. As I meet with Pakistan's civilian and military leaders during my visit, I will emphasize that the United States wishes to relinquish the grievances of the past - grievances held by both sides - and instead focus on the promise of the future. I will repeat President Obama's message that the United States is fully committed to a stable, long-term, strategic partnership with a democratic Pakistan - an enduring relationship based on shared interests and mutual respect that will continue to expand and deepen in the future on many levels, from security cooperation to economic development. . . ."

Opinion: Dead Or Alive, an op-ed by Charles Ferndale in the populist, often sensational national English daily "The News" (cir. 55,000) (01/21)

". . . . So strong are the arguments in favor of the hypothesis that Osama bin Laden is dead, that we should ask why Hilary Clinton, General Stanley McChrystal and President Barrack Obama still talk about the need to search for him in Pakistan and to capture him. Since the onus is now firmly upon anyone claiming that Bin Laden is alive to give us good reasons to believe it, and since no one who makes that claim ever offers such reasons, and since it is not credible that the officials I have just mentioned do not know that Bin Laden is almost certainly dead, we are forced to conclude that they are using Bin Laden's supposed existence as one of the four major fictions designed to justify their interventions in the Af-Pak region. . . ."

Opinion: Engaging with the US - II , an op-ed by Syed Talat Hussain in the Lahore-based liberal English language daily "Daily Times" (cir. 10,000) (01/21)

". . . . Sheeting questionable cooperation with Washington in ambiguity only fed speculation that the country's sovereignty was being compromised under US pressure. Also, this 'open-endedness' in our dealings with the US allowed Washington incredible leeway to interpret different commitments differently at different times. . . ."

Editorial: Indo-Pak Relations; America Should Stop Interference, an editorial note in the second-largest, nationalist Urdu daily "Nawa-i-Waqt" (cir. 150,000) (01/21)

"National Assembly Committee on Commerce Chairman Khurram Dastgir has said that America is putting severe pressure on Pakistan for giving India passage for trade with Afghanistan.... What Khurram Dastgir said has this fact that America looks for opportunities to protect Indian interests in all the fields.... America wants to make Pakistan a satellite of India. American policy makers should know that Pakistan detests this American attitude. India should resolve the Kashmir disputes if it wants to have friendship with Pakistan.... America should be told in categorical terms that unless India resolves Kashmir issue the trade transit facility will not be given to India.... If America is not willing to mediate for Pakistan-India relations then it should not as well interfere in other matters."

Editorial: Supreme Court's detailed verdict, an editorial in the liberal Urdu daily "Express" (cir. 25,000) (01/21)

"For the first time in the country's history, a step has been taken to make the rich, the influential and the powerful people of this country abide by rule of law....If this [verdict] is the first step towards judiciary's independence, strengthening of democracy, corruption-free politics, public welfare - then the accused should take the second step towards justice without any fear in their hearts."

Editorial: Supreme Court verdict on NRO, an editorial note in the Lahore-based populist center-right Urdu daily "Khabrain" (cir. 50,000) (01/21)

"The detailed judgment has clarified many points which were vague in the Supreme Court short order on NRO... However, the Supreme Court has now clarified that no one, including the President, is exempt. It is obvious that the government experts will now file appeals for review, opening a new Pandora's Box. It seems as though things will not be in the government's control now. The legal aspects of this case are now clear; the ball is now in the political parties' court."

Opinion: The Evil One, an op-ed by I. M. Mohsin in the center-right national English daily "The Nation" (cir. 20,000) (01/21)

". . . . The USA's major strength still is not its military juggernaut which projects her as 'the evil one'. It is the intellectual freedom to amass and disseminate knowledge. The leadership has to gel their diversity and commonality of interests to an optimal level. Only then would it shed its current stigma. The United States has to find a way out with Pakistan's help; It cannot 'occupy' the area nor abandon it a la 1990."
